

I want to urgently request that NOTHING be done to weaken State laws regarding telemarketing. Before Indiana's law passed, we had 12 - 16 calls PER DAY (not per week, but per day). My phone is MINE, for my use.

My State Attorney General has wisely asked me and other to make these points to you and I VERY much concur:

- That the FCC should not implement any proposal that would lessen Indiana's Telephone Privacy law protections.

- How Indiana's Telephone Privacy law has improved your time at home.

- How effective Indiana's law has been (e.g., "I used to receive 12 calls perweek, now I only receive one").

- Any of your personal views about the importance of Indiana's law. (SEE MY COMMENT ABOVE)

I do indeed believe that companies should be able to market. However, what ways an individual would like to be marketed to should be up to them.

Thank you very much.
